PREFACE

THE pictures described in this catalogue were collected by the HELFMANN family residing at Frankfort on the Main, who acquired most of them at important art sales which took place in that city and vicinity, and who brought them to this country on their removal to New York. They are offered for sale owing to the lack of facilities for properly housing them.

As will be seen from the biographical sketches, the majority of the paintings are by celebrated old masters, whose works are represented in the most important public galleries of Europe, a fact which will no doubt be appreciated by art lovers and collectors. There are in addition some excellent paintings by well-known modern European artists.

Great pains have been taken in conscientiously cataloguing these pictures and no hesitation is felt in assuring intending purchasers that they are genuine and in accordance with the descriptions given.

His paintings, which were often executed on copper, were always small and finished with the greatest perfection and detail, a quality then entirely new in Italy. His power over light and shadow was nearly as great as that of Rembrandt. The extreme patience and labor with which he finished his pictures were such that the prices he received for them never sufficiently repaid him for the time he spent on them.
